Adobe Photoshop vs. Photoshop Elements. Photoshop is the professional version of Adobe Photoshop.

Photoshop Elements is a lower-cost alternative for home users or folks with little or no experience with Photoshop. Photoshop Elements is great for image editing, creating new high-quality images, web design, and graphics. It has many of the same tools as Photoshop, but not all. For example, you can't create a high-quality image that is nearly as large as the professional version. You can only edit images in the smallest of sizes, for example, images with a resolution of 64x64 pixels. Photoshop is the most complex image editing software for home use. Photoshop Elements is a little more convenient. It has fewer features and a more simplistic user interface. Photoshop Elements makes it easy to perform some of the most common tasks, such as resizing, cropping, and simple retouching. You can also create new high-quality images, such as posters, flyers, business cards, and logos. Photoshop Elements comes with a standard set of tools and a basic digital photo editing program. You may be familiar with Photoshop's image editing features, but did you know Photoshop Elements offers a lot of the same features? If you have a friend or a loved one in the AIDS epidemic, you know all too well the depth of their pain and the amount of love and care they need as they fight the demon of AIDS. March is LGBT History Month, but for the past two years, I have also loved the month of March because it is also "Get Out of Jail Free" Month for our schools. Earlier this week I spent some time in our high school meeting with some of our teachers and administrators to discuss LGBT History Month, as well as our efforts to desegregate our school, a report that our teachers requested. I know that I speak for many when I say that we can't wait for the day our LGBT students can walk through our doors and feel safe and accepted. As a gay man, I was lucky to grow up in a community that respected and affirmed me and allowed me to reach my full potential, and I want that same respect, affirmation and opportunity for all of my students. But I also know that we are not there yet. Far from it, in fact. Far from it. I encourage my students to see the work they are doing on the community, on the school, as important. They are building a culture of caring, inclusion and acceptance, a culture that will be important in a world that is becoming more and more accepting of all kinds of people and the communities they belong to. I know that we can't be perfect, and I appreciate that my students know that as well. So rather than get hung up on who gets all the applause and credit for a good report card or the award that my wife and I won at the county fair, I want my kids to focus on what they are doing to bring positive change to our community. After the county fair last month, our son Tyler, who is a third grade student at Sidwell Friends School, heard a story that was especially moving. A local elementary school was named to receive a federal anti-discrimination act grant to help it provide an LGBT-inclusive environment. One of the administrators at the school in question shared with Tyler that students at his school talked openly about how they related to the rainbow. Their relationship to this emblem of tolerance was so important to them that they would celebrate it during assemblies and they treated it with the same reverence as they would any other school event. "Who knew that a rainbow had so much meaning?" Tyler said to me later

Tommy Robinson will be joined by Ukip leader Gerard Batten and EDL founder Tommy Robinson at the European Parliament in Strasbourg on 23 April, in what has been called "a call to arms for the alt-right." Front National leader Marine Le Pen and UKIP's Gerard Batten are also expected to attend. Alt-right protestors will be making their way from Holland to the European Parliament with a series of "Freedom

March” rallies around Europe. Right-wing organization Pro-Europe called the rally “a warning shot to the European progressive movement,” in an email on 12 April. The “downtrodden people of Europe” are petitioning European authorities to recognize these unassimilated “migrants” as “migrant people.” Speakers include Robinson, British politician and chairman of the English Defence League (EDL); United Kingdom Independence Party (UKIP) politician Gerard Batten; French far-right politician, journalist and blogger Marion Marechal-Le Pen and German far-right politician Martin Sellner, who is of Austrian citizenship. The “migrant issue is a kind of test for the extreme right,” one of the organizers told Euronews on Tuesday. He added that the demonstration was a “precursor of a larger march on Bastille Day” in France, as the far-right “will no longer abstain to take power.” Founded in 1994, the EDL is an English far-right political party that advocates a form of English nationalism and opposes immigration from the Islamic world. Robinson is facing trial in May for contempt of court after filming outside the Old Bailey while he was on bail for a charge of filming a child in a sexual act and distributing indecent images of children. He denies the allegations. Since the trial Robinson has been on bail, leading to reports of a possible escape to Ireland. Marion Marechal-Le Pen, who leads the National Rally party in France, is set to speak at the pro-Empire March, which is expected to attract thousands of supporters. The party is a new political party created by her father, National Front party leader Marine Le Pen. Jean-Marie Le Pen, Marine's grandfather, headed the party in the 1970s and 1980s. Marine's uncle, former Front National (FN) politician and
