The regulation of apoptosis by the Bcl-2 protein family has been shown to be dependent on modification by farnesyltransferase inhibitors. We have previously reported that leukocytes from mice treated with selumetinib, a pharmacological inhibitor of farnesyltransferase 1 and 2, are resistant to activation-induced cell death. Although the pathways regulating apoptosis in leukocytes have been well characterized, the mechanisms of action are still largely unknown. In this study we describe the effects of a new farnesyltransferase inhibitor (FTI-277) on leukocytes obtained from the spleen and thymus of mice. FTI-277 inhibits the proliferation of T cells in a dose-dependent manner. At micromolar concentrations FTI-277 inhibits the phosphorylation of the CDK inhibitors p21, p27 and p16 and reduces the expression of E2F1, CDC25A and Bcl-2 family member levels. These effects correlate with an increase in the levels of the pro-apoptotic Bax and Bak proteins. FTI-277 also reduces the formation of the Bax/Bak dimer, which is crucial for the activation of Bak and its translocation to the mitochondria. The pro-apoptotic potential of FTI-277 is selective for leukocytes because the compound has little effect on the viability of a colon cancer cell line. Our results suggest that FTI-277 selectively induces apoptosis in leukocytes by increasing the levels of Bax and Bak and decreasing the level of Bcl-2 family members.WordPress.com VIP Update: The Fix is Here This comes to you from the president. No, wait, this should come to you from the team at WordPress.com. I'm merely the office spouse. For those of you who are still unaware of the upcoming VIP update, you can read more about it here. So, what does this mean? Well, first of all, don't panic. I'm not breaking up with you! WordPress.com VIP has gone through a massive overhaul, and we have several new features in place to help you manage your sites, and your business, the way you want to. What's New? Custom Domain One of the new features we're adding to the VIP update is the ability to have a custom domain for your site, so you can choose whatever you want to call it, even if it's something of your own creation. No more domain squatters! The new domain is free and you can opt into it as you sign up for a new site. Here's the kicker though... you have to opt in before you start using it. This is an auto-scaling feature, so you don't lose anything if you do it in reverse. I've got the VIP update installed on my site right now and it's working as expected.
